On Saturday or Sunday might someone relieved of all the gasoline we had on hand some twelve or fifteen gallons in all.

We suppose that the man, who ever he was, thought he needed the gasoline worse than we did; but what has bothered us more than anything else is why he should steal from us, do we wish to pursue of business or does he think that we have done him some injury and wishes to get even?

If the former, we're afraid he will be disappointed for a time at least. We have still a small bank account and, as we have paid our account to date, our credit is good for a few barrels of gasoline. If it is because he imagines we have done him some injury he will get poor satisfaction out of his revenge.

He must be tender-hearted but if anything we have done or said has hurt his feelings, so tender-hearted must be that it is hard for us to believe that he was bold enough to steal our gasoline.

We are of a generous and forgiving disposition and, as we try to follow the example of the Good Book, we forgive him and hope that his conscience will not trouble him to much.

We hope that while he is bussing our gasoline it will not explode and send him to the place reserved for such as he where it is said they are used in place of gasoline.

We advise to him and it comes from sincere regard, is that he should go to church during the week—she needs it all. Also if he wants any more gasoline he should ask for it, for if we did not know he was coming he might accidentally run up against a shower bath of cold lead or the end of a bullet in the hands of the devil who is always lurking around this place, our generous feelings towards him will not permit us to see him run without giving him fair warning. So beware.

Many of our town people are enquiring why there is not being done something to get a better water supply at our town well. We understand that the council are waiting for and expecting to get the use of a government well machine but the promise of this machine has now been standing for over two years. The Alberta Legislature has had two sessions and yet there has been nothing definite done to relieve the situation at this point and as far as we can find out no definite end-standing as to when any assistance will be rendered by the government. We believe that our representative Mr. MacKenzie has done all he can to fulfill the promises that he made but the government does not seem to be making any progress.

But we do not want the government to muck. In a new and growing provinces like ours the demand on the Public Works Department for financial assistance toward local improvements must be very great and perhaps many towns and villages that are not asable as Claresholm to support them selves are asking for assistance so we think unless the council can get a definite assurance of immediate assistance in the shape of a well machine they should take steps at once to get this work done independent of the government. There is too much money invested in waterworks now to be allowed to lay idle as it is at present.

We know that the council are in a rather difficult position but we know that the town would give them heart support if they would take the matter into their own hands and push it to finish and that immediately even if it costs considerable more money to complete it we want a good supply of water and want it as soon as it is possible to get it.

It should not be hard to persuade anyone who has had to wade through the mud during the past week to turn out Saturday next and vote for the bylaw to raise $5,000 for street improvements.

Sublime and the Ridiculous.

A clergyman was preaching in a strange church one Sunday evening.
While he was having supper at the vicarage afterwards a ring came at the bell. The maid entered and said,
"Please sir, there is a man at the door who says he wants to speak to the preacher." The clergyman, thinking he was going to interview
someone who had been touched by sorcery, had said in the sermon he had got up with alacrity and went into the hall. Here he saw a tall powerful-looking man. "Well, my what can I do for you?" "Well,
I was thinking while I was a-listening to your preaching as how you might have a pair of trousers
as would fit me." Both were well over six feet in height.

The clergyman in this story is the Rev. W. Carrington, who at one time Vicar of Christ Church, West Bromwich, and is now in Christchurch, New Zealand.

World's Wheat Supply Precarious

New York, May 5.—Post special financial cable dated London says: "The world's soul looks for this season's wheat yield is being harvested in Europe, and the grain market is quiet and the reports of crop damage in America are becoming too instant and explicit to be ignored, and in face of this, the crop outlook in Europe as a whole, must be termed distinctly unfavorable."

The trade is thus confronted with the not wholly distinct possibility of a world-wide crop, both European and American, equivalent to that sown with in grain trade history. Boerhaave's judgment is that during the whole past season, wheat has been too cheap in comparison with all other products.

On the other hand, there is the world's visible wheat supply as of May 1, showing 19,980,000 quarters against 18,725,000 a year ago.
